E.J. Strelitz President and CEO | The Dump

THE DUMP IS AN OUTLET FOR BRAND-NAME FURNITURE, mattresses, Oriental rugs and carpet at 40 to 70 percent off the regular price. It has grown from a single-location to one of the largest furniture outlet chains with 10 stores in six states.

E. J. Strelitz conceived and launched the chain. While a division of Virginia Beach-based Haynes Furniture, The Dump was a separate concept with no guarantee for success. Strelitz risked at least $12 million to open each Dump store. And despite a recession, he has decided to open a location in Chicago later this year, requiring an investment of about $16 million. It will be 25 percent larger than any existing Dump store and among the largest in the Chicago market.

In addition, he follows his family's tradition of philanthropy. He has been president of the Strelitz Diabetes Center, a board member of the Children's Hospital of The King's Daughters, the United Jewish Federation and a founding donor of the Strelitz Early Childhood Center.

Here he talks about the journey and who has helped along the way.

The Dump Opens Chicago Market Store

Furniture retailer The Dump opened its 11th store over the weekend in the Chicago area.

The 134,000-square-foot store in Lombard, Ill., is the latest in the furniture retailer's nationwide expansion plan.

"Today marks the beginning of an entirely new furniture shopping experience for the Chicago marketplace," said E.J. Strelitz, president and CEO of The Dump. "At The Dump, we are able to consistently deliver massive savings on the best furniture, mattresses and rugs as a result of our unique retail business model. Unlike traditional retail, The Dump is open Friday, Saturday and Sunday each week, which allows us to replenish our stock with completely new inventory during the rest of the week. We are also able to keep our overhead lower by closing the store during the traditionally slower period of the week and pass those savings onto the consumer."

The Dump to open first Chicago store Aug. 30

CHICAGO — Top100 company Haynes Furniture will open its first Chicagoland furniture outlet in the suburb of Lombard, Ill., and its 11th overall Dump later this summer.

The 134,000-square-foot store - the largest high-end furniture outlet in the market, according to the company - is slated to open Aug. 30 in the former Great Indoors space at South Highland Avenue and Butterfield Road. The retailer, which follows Warren, Mich.-based Art Van into the market, expects to hire 250 people, including more than 100 people in sales, operations, management and stock positions.

The Virginia Beach, Va.-based retailer did not immediately disclose its investment or projected sales for the market.

"The August 30th sneak preview of our Lombard location marks a major milestone for The Dump and demonstrates our long-term commitment to expanding The Dump brand nationally," said E.J. Strelitz, President and CEO of Haynes and its The Dump division.

Looking for a $250 mattress or a $20,000 Oriental rug?

A T.J. MAXX FOR FURNITURE

"Right now, we have a sofa that is identical to one that retails for $3,900 at Restoration Hardware in our stores for $2,295," he said, adding that the Dump is essentially a T.J. Maxx for furniture. The Dump also carries $5,000 Oriental rugs that retail for as much as $20,000 in places like New York's ABC Carpet & Home, as well as rugs for as little as $100.

Like the Sleepy's expansion, the Dump's entrance into the Chicago market marks the chain's first foray into the Midwest. The company has 10 locations in Pennsylvania, Texas, Virginia, Georgia, Arizona and New Jersey.

"We've been wanting to come into Chicago for five years, and we think we can do it with one store, whereas New York or L.A. would require three or four," Mr. Strelitz said.

The store operates only Friday through Sunday and brings in a constant array of new inventory. Only one or two of each style is generally available.

"By the time Sunday night comes around, the store is a mess and 40 percent of our inventory is gone, so we need most of the subsequent week to recover, bring in new merchandise, tag it and get it on the floor," Mr. Strelitz explained. "And we don't want our salespeople to be hanging around, bored, not doing anything on Tuesday mornings." He said salespeople, who earn $10 an hour plus commission, can "realistically" expect to earn $75,000 annually working three days a week.

The company, which began in 1986 as "a real dump" in an old grocery store warehouse in Virginia, began growing in earnest over the past decade, Mr. Strelitz said.

"The furniture business is a pretty crazy, very fragmented business," he said. "There are very few barriers to entry, so there's tremendous competition and there's always suppliers coming to market to try their hand." That means plenty of leftover inventory.

The Dump Furniture Store Opens in Lombard; Joint Venture to Develop Evergreen Promenade Shopping Center

One of the largest furniture outlets in the country, The Dump, has recently officially opened its new location in Lombard, Illinois. Featuring a staggering 134,000 square feet, The Dump is now the largest high-end furniture outlet in the Chicago marketplace. The opening of the Lombard outlet confirms the company's continuous expansion as it becomes the 11th location for The Dump Furniture Store, a division of Virginia Beach-based Haynes Furniture.

Located at South Highland Avenue and Butterfield Road in the former Great Indoors space, The Dump opened its doors with a ribbon-cutting ceremony held on Labor Day weekend. The ceremony was attended by representatives of the Lombard Area Chamber of Commerce & Industry. The Dump will employ 250 people in its Lombard store and its new warehouse in Addison, Illinois.

"Today marks the beginning of an entirely new furniture shopping experience for the Chicago marketplace," said E.J. Strelitz, president and CEO of The Dump. The discount-designer furniture store that's killing it

Twice a year E.J. Strelitz's company buys up designer showrooms from High Point Market in North Carolina, the furniture industry's monster trade show, and brings them -- along with other furnishings from across the country -- to a place called The Dump.

It's a curious name for a national chain that trades in major life purchases -- that Italian leather sectional, that hand-knotted rug by Calvin Klein. But in a furniture industry clobbered in recent years both by the rise of imports and the Great Recession, The Dump's done well by its strategy: selling discounted-designer furniture in sprawling stores that are open just three days a week.

"Ironically, we really shine in higher-end goods," says CEO Strelitz, who regularly touts half-off prices big-ticket items.

Looking for Furniture? The Dump opens in Lombard on October 11

The Dump, a new discount furniture store in Lombard, is holding its official grand opening this weekend. It is the 11th store in a chain that started out as a clearance outlet for Haynes Furniture stores in Norfolk, VA. The people at Haynes saw the potential to buy different closeouts, so they expanded the outlet into its own chain.

"We buy deals from all the brand-name manufacturers," says E.J. Strelitz, president of Haynes Furniture. One of the best sources of furniture is for The Dump is the High Point Market, where furniture companies show their latest designs and prototypes. These floor models are cleared out in time for the manufacturers to stock for new shows, and The Dump is a major buyer.

The opening sale is expected to have sample sale items from Calvin Klein, Natuzzi Italia, Sherrill Furniture, and Old Hickory Furniture, among others. And, The Dump is giving out free t-shirts with any purchase during the opening.

Everything for sale is either brand new or a floor model; the inventory includes furniture, accessories, rugs, and mattresses. "It's all first quality, all under manufacturer's warranty," Strelitz says. Strelitz says that running The Dump is a lot of fun. "We're merchants, and we love finding great deals," he says.

There are two unusual features of The Dump to know. The first is that new merchandise comes in all the time, so you never know what you will find. The second is that the store is open only on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. If Monday is a holiday, the store may be open then, too.

The Dump to host Grand Opening Sale

LOMBARD -- The Dump, a high-end furniture outlet store, will celebrate its grand opening Friday with a sample sale.

The store, which is headquartered in Virginia Beach, opened its Lombard store at the end of August and is now celebrating the grand opening. For this event, the store has purchased hundreds of design prototypes from furniture designers and customers can get discounts of up to 87 percent off pieces.

The sale will feature 40 showrooms stocked with furniture and home decor, along with 5,000 hand-knotted rugs available for purchase.

The Dump in Lombard is the organization's first store in the Chicago market and is open on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, only. The store is located at 2860 S. Highland Ave.

Does Part-Time Work Have To Be Low Paying?

Most of us see full-time jobs as the best ones. But as more companies shift to offering part-time gigs, some are finding ways to make sure that these positions are well-paying enough to attract great people who need the kind of income that usually only comes with working nine-to-five. And that can be a good way to get a competitive edge.

Virginia Business Briefs for Aug. 30

The Dump, the Virginia Beach-based chain of discount furniture outlets owned by Haynes Furniture, plans to open its 11th and largest store this weekend. The store in the Chicago suburb of Lombard, Ill., is the first in that state and cost about $18 million, Haynes said. It is 25 percent bigger than any other The Dump store and is the second-largest furniture store in the Chicago area, after Ikea, according to Haynes. The Dump has stores in Norfolk, Hampton and Richmond and in New Jersey, Georgia, Pennsylvania, Texas and Arizona. It began in 1985 as an outlet for Haynes.

The Dump Furniture Outlet Brings Jobs, Possible Economic Boost to Lombard, Addison

They've been preparing for it for weeks, everybody saw it coming and finally Lombard is getting dumped on. But early indications suggest this could be a good thing for the area as a new furniture outlet store called The Dump prepares to open its doors in Lombard next week.

Giftcard Giveaway to New Chicago Furniture Store: The Dump

Dear Chicago House, Who doesn't love a bargain...better still who doesn't love something for FREE! Let's combine the two with a free $134 gift card to a discount furniture store, "The Dump," who on August 30, are celebrating the opening of a new 134,000 sqft store in Lombard IL. I had a little poke around their website to see what they offer and they really do have pretty nice stuff at very attractive prices.

Incoming Chain the Dump Might Be the TJ Maxx of Furniture

Get ready for this, amateur interior decorators: The Dump, the discount offshoot of Virginia-based Haynes Furniture, will open a location in Lombard, IL. Why this matters to non-suburbanites: The shop will be stocked with reasonably priced couches, tables, rugs and other furniture, and has been hailed as the "TJ Maxx" of furniture. This will be The Dump's first Midwestern location.

A Chicago Suburb is Getting The Dump

The name of furniture store The Dump doesn't exactly make you want to go there. But you may want to rethink that first impression. The chain (there are 10 other locations in the U.S.) is opening its first Chicago-area store in Lombard at the end of August. Now, to be clear, this is not a place where you'll see artisanal or designer home goods. But it's also not a place filled with mass-market furniture made from particle board.

Why The Dump Pays 75K a Year to Work Just 3 Days a Week

I overheard a young man talking on his smart phone after he was just offered a sales position at our store, and the excitement in his voice was palpable. "Yeah," he continued to say, "I work only three days a week, and I can make $75,000 a year. Can you believe that? It sounds almost too good to be true." But it is true. On August 30th, The Dump, America's number-one outlet chain, will be opening a new store in Lombard, Illinois, and as CEO and President of The Dump, I can tell you that everything that young man just exclaimed is absolutely true.

The Dump furniture outlet opening in Lombard August 30, 2013

The August 30th sneak preview of our Lombard location marks a major milestone for The Dump and demonstrates our long-term commitment to expanding The Dump brand nationally," said E.J. Strelitz. "A big part of The Dump's remarkable growth is based on strategically selecting cost-effective, centralized locations within major marketplaces, which is why we selected Lombard as the 11th home for The Dump. This strategy has proven to be a winner in every market The Dump has entered since 1985.

The Dump Furniture Outlet Leases 156,410 SF Warehouse in Tempe

Phoenix, Arizona - Velocity Retail Group, LLC announces that The Dump Furniture Outlet, a subsidiary of Virginia-based Haynes Furniture Company, Inc. has finalized the lease of a 156,410-square-foot warehouse at 6655 E. Kyrene Road in Tempe, Arizona.

Darren Pitts represents The Dump nationwide for new site selection. The Dump is one of America's top furniture outlet stores, the parent company is ranked 28th in Furniture Today's "Top 100 Furniture Stores" rankings for 2012. The Dump buys overstocks, one-of-a-kinds, factory sell outs, showroom models and design prototypes. All products are brand new merchandise offered at huge savings to the customer. Learn more about this retailer at www.thedump.com

Darren Pitts, Executive Vice President at Velocity Retail Group and Bob Crum of Ross Brown Partners represented The Dump in the transaction. The landlord, CLPP-Kyrene 3, LP, an entity controlled by Clarion Partners, LLC, was represented by Jones Lang LaSalle.

"The site is our existing logistics and operations location which supports the retail store at Elliot and Interstate 10. We were pleased to be able to secure the location for an additional five years as this asset is an integral part for The Dump's operations in Arizona," said Pitts.

Pitts can be reached at (602) 682-8100. Crum is at (480) 362-9521. Headquarters for The Dump can be contacted (804) 262-6480

Get Your Furniture At The Dump!

The Dump - not a very sophisticated name for a furniture store. But if you are looking for furniture, it is the best place in the Dallas metroplex. When I visited this place back in February, I was drooling over their pretty furniture. Their prices are to-die-for.

Where would you be able to find a great quality sectional suede couch that costs at least 6 and an ottoman for $700? The Dump has it!!!

A client mentioned that her dining table that she had purchased from The Dump for $1,500 sold for over $3,000 at another furniture store. The exact same make and model. That's a 50% savings....

The Dump is conveniently located in Las Colinas/ Irving Texas area. To get there, get on I-635 (towards the airport). Exit Olympus (after the MacArthur exit). The Dump will be on your right (pass Fry's Electronics and Home Depot).

The Dump is open only on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays. That is how they keep their overhead low. They are open from 10am - 9pm on Fridays and Saturdays and 12pm - 8pm on Sundays

If you are looking for quality furniture at prices that will surprise you, think The Dump!!!!
